

Drummond Laurie Ltd Job Applicant privacy notice

As part of our recruitment processes, the Company collects and processes personal data relating to job applicants. The Company is committed to being transparent about how it collects and uses that data and to meeting its data protection obligations.

Drummond Laurie Ltd is a “Data Controller” and gathers and uses certain information about you.

What information does the Company collect?

The Company collects a range of information about you. This includes:

- Your name, address and contact details, including email address and home and mobile phone numbers.
- Details of your qualifications, skills, experience and employment history, including start and end dates with previous employers and with the Company where relevant.
- Information about your current level of remuneration, including benefit entitlements.
- Whether or not you have a disability for which the Company needs to make reasonable adjustments during the recruitment process.
- Information about your entitlement to work in the UK.

The Company may collect this information in a variety of ways. For example, data might be contained in application forms, CVs or resumes, obtained from your passport or other identity documents, or collected through interviews or other forms of assessment.

The Company may also collect personal data about you from third parties, such as references supplied by former employers. The Company will seek information from third parties only once a job offer to you has been made and accepted by you and we will inform you of our intention to do so.

Data will be stored in a range of different places, including on your application record, in HR management systems and on other IT systems (including email and hard copy notes).

Why does the Company process personal data?

The Company needs to process data to take steps at your request prior to entering into a contract with you. It may also need to process your data to enter into a contract with you.

In some cases, the Company needs to process data to ensure that it is complying with its legal obligations. For example, it is required to check a successful applicant's eligibility to work in the UK before employment starts.

The Company has a legitimate interest in processing personal data during the recruitment process and for keeping records of the process. Processing data from job applicants allows the Company to manage the recruitment process, assess and confirm a candidate's suitability for employment and decide to whom to offer a job. The Company may also need to process data from job applicants to respond to and defend against legal claims.

The Company also may collect information about whether or not applicants are disabled in order to make reasonable adjustments for candidates during the recruitment process who have a disability. The Company processes such information to carry out its obligations and exercise specific rights in relation to employment.

If your application is unsuccessful, the Company may keep your personal data on file in case there are future employment opportunities for which you may be suited. The Company will ask for your consent before it keeps your data for this purpose and you are free to withdraw your consent at any time.

Who has access to data?

Your information may be shared internally for the purposes of the recruitment exercise. This includes interviewers involved in the recruitment process and managers in the business area with a vacancy if access to the data is necessary for the performance of their roles.

The Company will not share your data with third parties, unless your application for employment is successful and it makes you an offer of employment. The Company will then share your data with former employers to obtain references for you and employment background check providers to obtain necessary background checks.

The Company also shares your data with third parties that process data on its behalf, in connection with its Human Resources provider, payroll provider, recruitment partner, and the provision of occupational health services. The recipients of the information will be bound by confidentiality obligations. We may also be required to share some personal information as required to comply with law or regulation such as with UK Visas and Immigration and law enforcement agencies.

The Company only stores~~will not transfer~~ your personal data on systems entirely within its own premises and therefore within the UK~~outside the European Economic Area.~~

Where the Company shares your~~OR~~

Your data with a third party, we ensure as far as possible that the third party only stores and processes said data on systems that are either within the UK or European Economic Area.

Where the third party (or its systems) are located~~may be transferred~~ outside the European Economic Area then we will try and ensure that they are either in a country which has been identified as ensuring an adequate level (EEA) to (specify purpose). Data is transferred outside the EEA on the basis of protection for the rights and freedoms (specify relevant safeguards e.g. declaration of data subjects, eg New Zealand, or, where they are located in the US, that they participate in the Privacy Shield program.~~adequacy, binding corporate rules or other safeguards).~~

As the company does not have complete control over the third parties we require to share your information with (for example your current employer or referees) then we cannot guarantee that one or more of those third parties or the systems they use are not in a country out-with the European Economic Area, or, if they are in the US, that they participate in the Privacy Shield program. As part of the recruitment process we are required to contact these third parties using information supplied by you and therefore if you have any concerns regarding their treatment of your personal data by said third parties, then you should address this before providing the Company with those details.

How does the Company protect data?

The Company takes the security of your data seriously. It has internal policies and controls in place to ensure that your data is not lost, accidentally destroyed, misused or disclosed, and is not accessed except by our employees in the proper performance of their duties.

Where the Company engages third parties to process personal data on its behalf during the recruitment process, they do so on the basis of written instructions, are under a duty of confidentiality and are obliged to implement appropriate technical and Company measures to ensure the security of data.

For how long does the Company keep data?

If your application for employment is unsuccessful, and if you agree to allow the Company to keep your personal data on file, the Company will hold your data on file for 12 months after the end of the relevant recruitment process for consideration for future employment opportunities. At the end of that period, or once you withdraw your consent, your data is deleted or destroyed.

If your application for employment is successful, personal data gathered during the recruitment process will be transferred to your personnel file (and retained for the duration of your employment. The periods for which your data will be held are contained in the Company's Data Protection Policy.

Your rights

As a data subject, you have a number of rights. You can:

- Access and obtain a copy of your data on request.
- Require the Company to change incorrect or incomplete data.
- Require the Company to delete or stop processing your data, for example where the data is no longer necessary for the purposes of processing.

- Object to the processing of your data where the Company is relying on its legitimate interests as the legal ground for processing.

If you would like to exercise any of these rights, please contact (Mary Jack on mary.jack@drummondlaurie.co.uk).

If you believe that the Company has not complied with your data protection rights, you can complain to the Information Commissioner, whose contact details are as follows:-
